

HUSKY HIKE

Summer 2011

HIKE WITH ADORABLE HUSKIES

I love life and especially dogs! The training, employment of dogs in work or leisure is interesting and I want to learn about arctic safari dogs and their lives. A jolly guide offers up loads of information about the dogs used on safaris, their nutrition, exercise and working day. Unbelievable, how they manage to haul a heavy sled behind them often for tens of kilometres a day in harsh winter conditions. Now I understand why they get such a long summer holiday - if only I also could have a summer holiday lasting for five months! At the end of the briefing, I get to harness myself anxiously to a draught animal. Both ends of the rope are attached to harnesses, one end for me and the other for a Siberian husky called Jäger. The going is hard in places, as we trek along the local tracks in a brisk loop. It feels as if Jäger is already looking forward to the autumn training season, because the rope is taut. I have time to enjoy the view before the return to the kennel. At the end of the trip water will taste so good to the beings at either end of the rope. A wonderful trip! In winter I will do the same again, this time driving the dogs from the sleds.
